PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

This edition of the Glossary and Index of Technical Terms to The Encyclopaedia of Islam incorporates Volume VIII (NED-SAM), which was published in June 1995, and is thus a cumulative glossary cum index of all bound volumes and the supplement fascicules published to date. The compilation of the terms of Volume VIII was undertaken by Jos van Lent, co-compiler of the first edition (1995) with Dr Hakeem Uddeen Qureshi (who tackled Vols. I to III), and the entire text was then edited by Peri Bearman.

The entries in the glossary are listed alphabetically following the Roman alphabet; the root system common to Semitic languages is therefore ignored. Those marked in bold refer to articles in the Encyclopaedia. The entry appears where possible under the singular form of the word, with the pluralis following in parentheses, unless the plural form has a separate meaning altogether, or the singular was not specified in the Encyclopaedia. Where the plural of a term is significant in its own right, a cross-reference to the singular, where it is defined, is given, e.g. adwiya  $\rightarrow$  DAWĀ'. All cross-references to entries within the glossary are given in small capitals. Compounds making up a technical term, e.g. ahl al-'ahd, are generally listed in the entry of the first element; thus, ahl al-'ahd is found under ahl. The same is true for adjectives, plurals, etc. formed from the same word, e.g. 'askarī (under 'askar), 'akliyyāt (under 'akl). When an exception is made, a cross-reference is included.

The transcription in the glossary follows for the most part that of the Encyclopae-dia. Certain words such as Baghdad and sultan, which are now part and parcel of the English language, have not been transcribed; for easy recognition, Qur'ān is written thus and not as Ķur'ān. In words of Berber or North African origin, a schwa has been used to reproduce a neutral vowel.

Immeasurable thanks are due both to the Editors of the Encyclopaedia, who steadfastly and with humour exert themselves for this veritable monument of 20th-century scholarship, and to the many authors, who remain loyal and trustworthy; the term they bring to mind is fard.

April 1997 Peri Bearman

Corpus Inscriptionum Arabicarum Palaestinae

Volume One: A

Moshe Sharon

The religious and strategic importance of Western Palestine in the Islamic period is clearly reflected in the hundreds of Arabic inscriptions found, the texts of which cover a variety of topics including construction, dedication, religious endowments, epitaphs, Qur'anic texts, prayers and invocations, all now assembled in this Corpus Inscriptionum Arabicarum Palaestinae (CIAP). The inscriptions are arranged according to site, and are studied in their respective topographical, historical and cultural contexts. In this way the Corpus offers more than a survey of inscriptions: it represents the epigraphical angle of the geographical history of the Holy Land.
